RIDERS

DICTIONARIE,

CORRECTED AND AUGMENTED WITH THE ADDITION OF many hundred Words both out of the Law, and out of the Latine, French, and other languages, such as were and are with us in common use, but never printed till now, to the perfecting of the worke.

THE BARBAROVS WORDS WHICH WERE many hundreds are expunged, to the helpe of young Scholars, which before they used in stead of good Words.

In the end of the Dictionarie you shall finde certaine generall heads of Birds, Colours, Dogs, Fishes, Hawkes, Hearbs, Numbers, Stones, Trees, Weights.

Lastly, the names of the chiefe places and Townes in England, Scotland, and Ireland, &c. which were never in RIDERS before.

Also hereunto is annexed certaine Tables of Weights and Measures, the valuation of auncient and moderne Coines; as also a table of the Hebrew, Greek, and Latine Measures, reduced to our English Standard and Assise; and the weights used in Physick, none of which were ever in RIDERS worke.

Whereunto is joyned a Dictionarie Etymologicall, deriving each word from his proper fountaine, the first that ever was extant in this kind, with many worthy Castigations and Additions, in this last Edition, as will appeare in the Title and Epistle before it.

Now newly corrected and much augmented by FRANCIS HOLY-OKE.

TO THE READER.

COurteous Reader, I may ſeeme to ſome over bold in ſetting forth a new treaſure of words to the world, when the works of ſo honourable and learned men, who have laboured in this kind, are ſo learnedly penned, and highly eſteemed. In truth I muſt, and doe moſt willingly confeſs, that neither in age, wit, learning or experience, I am to be compared with the leaſt of them: nay unfit to carry the books, where ſome of the honourable learned ſhould read the Lecture; whoſe learned labours have yeelded theſe many yeares to England great profit. Yet notwithſtanding, conſidering the great utility of a Dictionarie, whoſe matter is manifold, and uſe generall, and alſo that no one dictionary, as yet extant, hath the Engliſh before the latine, with a full Index of all ſuch latine words as are in any common dictionary amongſt us, & becauſe the poor eſtate of moſt ſtudents is not able to furniſh themſelves with all ſuch Dictionaries, their ſeverall prices amounting to ſo much, and alſo weighing the great want that poore ſchollers have, in not having moſt, or all of the common Dictionaries: I have thought it good therefore, for thy benefit, Courteous Reader, to epitomize and contract the learned works of the learneſt and beſt Dictionaries in England with us now extant, into a leſſer roome, reducing all thoſe learned volumes into a portable Enchiridion, and into ſo great treaſures to caſt, for thy uſe, ſome ſmall mites of mine own, which amount to foure thouſand words more than any one dictionary now extant affords. Which I have done not without great paines and charges: which heavy burthen of charge, if it had not been ſupported by the Right Honorable, my very good Lord, the Earle of Suſſex, and the Right Worſhipfull Maſter William Waade, Eſquire one of the Clerkes of her Majeſties moſt Honourable privy Counſell, with other of my good loving pariſhioners of Bermondſey neere London, and good friends in & neere Banbury, it might have bin ſaid of me, as it was of the fooliſh builder, This man began to build, but was not able to make an end. But at laſt, though long, by Gods providence, it is come to this iſſue, that I muſt preſent it (howſoever it be finiſhed) to thy courteous view and friendly cenſure: requeſting thee to reprove with judgement charitably, what I have overpaſt in haſt: in recompence whereof, I will be no leſſe willing to reforme than thy courteſie to admoniſh. Thus aſſuring my ſelf, that thou (Learned Reader) wilt (my faults eſcaped) either with thy pen correct, or in courteſie conceale, remembring that the ſhadowes of young painters may have ſome blemiſhes, & firſt editions of young writers (yea and beſt works) ſome faults: I commit thee (gentle Reader) to his tuition, that muſt preſent thee and me faultleſs, in his own righteouſneſs, before the great Judge at the comming of our lord Jeſus Chriſt.
